Surgical management of malignant pleural mesothelioma. Mesotheliomas are most commonly associated with asbestos exposure. The majority of patients with mesothelioma are diagnosed at a late stage of the disease with the main presenting symptom being dyspnea. Resection of the pleura may provide an improvement in dyspnea and quality of life. Operative management should be considered for patients with localized disease and locally advanced or inoperable disease. There are no good data to recommend neoadjuvant chemotherapy before pleural surgery. There are also few data on the effectiveness of other methods of palliation, such as radiation therapy or chemotherapy, in this setting. Therefore, the approach to managing mesothelioma is guided by individual factors, including patient performance status, co-morbid conditions and preference. The extent of resection should be limited to a maximum of one lung. Close postoperative follow-up is required, including regular clinical and radiographic examinations. Fire keeps massive warehouse in Oakland dark OAKLAND, Calif. — A warehouse fire kept the large building in Oakland in the dark for nearly three weeks. At a news conference, Oakland Fire Department spokesman Lt. Mark Garcia said Saturday the blaze at 513 Kaiser St. was first reported on Dec. 14. The fire didn't start until Dec. 20, but it started on the roof, Garcia said. Garcia said Saturday that a large amount of space-cleaning chemicals used in the warehouse's warehousing and shipping business caused the fire. "It was a product of what was being stored inside," he said. "It's because of what was being stored inside." The fire marshal determined that there was no threat to the surrounding community, he said. Officials say the warehouse is an illegal structure. Police and the fire department were called to the warehouse on Sept.

9, Garcia said. The building was to be evicted, he said. The Oakland Fire Department was called out on Feb. 4 and is still working on the blaze, Garcia said. He said firefighters are using around-the-clock hours to control the fire. As the building is not considered a structure of historic or cultural importance, there were no permits for the warehouse to be built, Garcia said.
